

Problem Statement:

The lack of close and affordable parking on campus causes students to be late to class and lose valuable time in their day.

Details:

The parking lots for students tend to also be for faculty members, so they fill up very quickly, even though faculty have their own lots as well.

The few lots on campus have incredibly limited space, so they fill up quickly, leading to the use of paid spaces or of lots off campus.

A guaranteed spot is only in garages which are $440 a semester, which is not affordable for most.

The majority of on-campus parking uses parking meters, which can be very costly. Daily parking in garages is also very costly.

Looking for an available space can take over an hour on some days, leading to students being late to class.
